Reporter, presenter, storyteller, journalist / 2001 - present

I love to listen, share and transmit the stories of inspiring people.
I started when I was 16 at the BBC in London. I was published in The Wall Street Journal at age 21 with an editorial article on Bullfighting.
I trained as an anchor at CNBC Asia Hong-Kong.
I went to Israel as a reporter in the middle of the war for The Jerusalem Post.
In the center of Vatican Square, I covered the Pope's funeral and election for CNN & Reuters in Rome alongside Richard Quest and John King.
Since 2016, I have been doing voice overs for the EU Commission and Agence France Presse. In 2018 with Paris Match France, I did an exclusive and intimate interview with the singer Claude François's secret daughter.

Freelance project manager / since 2018

When Quique Dacosta, Jean-Michel Lories, Villa Eugénie and Thierry Boutemy offer me the opportunity to manage their international events, I jump on the occasion. From A Coruña to Saudi Arabia, I travel with the team to manage the logistics and Michelin star chefs. for the wedding of Marta Ortega and the Princess of Saudi Arabia.
